

OBJECTIVE: LONG-TERM CAPITAL GROWTH AND INCOME BY INVESTING IN HIGH QUALITY GLOBAL COMPANIES.

GLOBAL MARKET OVERVIEW

Global equity market indices experienced mixed results during the first month of 2021, as the global rollout of COVID-19 vaccinations and promises of further fiscal and monetary stimulus measures dominated headlines. In the U.S., the S&P 500 Index returned -1.0% as economic data revealed that U.S. GDP is growing at a preliminary annualised rate of 4.0%. The nation's core Personal Consumption Price Index, the Federal Reserve's preferred inflationary measure, is running at an annualised rate of 1.5% and its unemployment rate remained at 6.7%. In addition, the newly elected Biden-led administration proposed a US$1.9t "American Rescue Plan", on top of the bi-partisan US$ 900b fiscal stimulus plan agreed in late December. In Europe, the FTSE 100, Euro STOXX 50 and German DAX indices declined -0.8%, -1.8% and -2.1%, respectively. During the month, the IHS Markit Eurozone composite PMI fell for a second consecutive month to 47.8 as lockdown restrictions continued to drive the two-speed economy, with services sector activity suffering from local restrictions and lagging behind manufacturing output activity. Furthermore, the ECB held its refinancing operations, marginal lending facility and deposit facility rates at 0.00%, 0.25% and -0.50%, respectively, and extended its Pandemic Emergency Purchase Program to March 2022, worth €1,850b. In Australia, the S&P/ASX 300 Index returned +0.3%. Economic data revealed that the unemployment rate fell to 6.6% whilst preliminary December retail sales fell -4.2%. Consumer Discretionary (+4.8%), Communication Services (+2.6%) and Financials (+2.3%) were the best performing S&P/ASX 300 Index sectors. REITs (-4.1%), Industrials (-3.1%) and Health Care (-1.7%) were the worst performers. Across foreign exchange markets, the U.S. dollar was mostly up against the G10 currencies during January, except against the New Zealand Dollar, Norwegian Krone and Pound Sterling.
